Her Choice.

"Do they edit in here?" The several occupants of the room looked around and discovered a young lady standing in the door-way. She nodded slightly to the horse reporter, and that individual returned the salutation with a placid mile-and-a-half-overeight-hurdles smile whose grandour of expanse would alone have made it no-"You are right this time," madam,"

"This is the exact spot where the seething brain of the trained journalist proceeds to bubble, and the lances of Thought that pierce with unerring aim the brazen helmets of Wrong are ever held in conchant poise by strong arms ready to launch them forth at the slightest signal of danger."

'Papa doesn't know I am up here," said the vision of loveliness, "but mamma does. The very minute I told her that I was going to see an editor she said it was the best thing to do, but when I got right to the door I just thought I should die."

"Well, we'll be gentle with you," replied the personal friend of Rarus. Would you like to read the Hawkins ville Courier or the Cohoes Freeman? pointing to a pile of exchanges.

"No, I don't care about it, thank you," was the reply. "You editors must have a hard time managing all the people who come up here." "There is a managing editor for that

Jed Hit It. The following incident occurred in a town not 100 miles from Boston. Scene house. Mr. Blank had just returned from a visit to the "Hub," and for the first time in his life possessed a watch he "bought in Bostown, and the man said it was a stunner for a time-keeper."

Turning to his son he says: "Come here one had tanks or barrels to spare, and Jed, and see the inside of the thing." There, that thing," pointing to the regulator, "the man sed made it go jest as yer wanted it ter, but what do yer spose that F and S means on that piece that's marked off? Hanged if I can make it out." "Let's see, dad," says Jed. "I'll bet I know; it's to regulate the thing.

If you want to find out how great a grease your boots too!"

An average two or three-year-old steer will cat its own weight of different materials in two weeks.

There is no loss in feeding eattle well on a variety of materials for the sake of manure alone. Two or three year old cattle will add one-third of a pound more per day to their weight upon prepared hay and roots than upon the same materials unprepared. There is no wisdom in working a thirty-acre field year after year to get corn to the acre, when with the same expense for fertilizers you could raise fifteen bushels of wheat or thirty of corn to the acre.

The general effect of lime is to render available the plant food already in the soil, without itself supplying any significant amount. Liming cannot, therefore, be successfully repeated ex-

five bushels of wheat or ten bushels of cept at considerable intervals. Judge Miller, of Missouri, says he has learned how a full week may be gained in getting sweet-corn for boiling. As soon as the ear is formed, break the top down or cut if off, but leave the stalk erect in order that the pollen of the tassel may be sure to dust the silk of the ears, as they may not be fully impreg-nated should the stalk be stopped.

More care is required to make fine, velvety lawns than is usually supposed. It is necessary to have plenty of rich oam, sufficient well-rooted manure or fertilizer, and the best of seed. If the subsoil be sandy or gravelly, a greater depth of learn is needed, or the bottom must be partially puddled with either clay or peat; if not, any manure or topdressing of any description soaks away, and disappears entirely.

The secret of success in transplant-ing is to press the soil well about the roots. In setting out plants, such as cabbage, celery, etc., be sure that the moist soil is brought into contact with the roots by pressing it down with the foot or a hoe, or the back of a spade. Mr. Peter Henderson urges the importance of this matter by compacting the soil both in sowing seeds and in transplanting plants, bushes and trees, and in setting out cuttings.

It appears from experiments that a heaping teaspoonful of paris green to twelve quarts of water is just as certain to destroy the potato beetle as a larger quantity; but one pound of the poison mixed with 100 pounds of plaster may be applied by the band, as it is proved by repeated tests that no bad results will follow taking it in the bare hands when mixed in these proportions. The plaster is worth to the crop all the la-

Jerusalem artichokes have long been known as a most valuable addition to the rations of hogs, but that they are even more valuable as an addition to the diet of cattle seems to be less generally recognized. They are hardy, yield fair crops on poor and very large ones on rich soil; are more nutritious than the potato, and once planted there will be no need of replanting, as they are not easily got out of a piece of land after they have become established.

The wearisome fault of horses, called forging, wherein they strike and click the bind and fore feet, is sometimes caused by too heavy shoeing. A very heavy, awkward shoe is not always a good shoe. Lowering the feet is some-times a remedy. Much is due also to the breaking of the young animal, and if he has been made to forge the reme dy should be applied as quickly as pos-sible. Keeping the head up is a good Horses prone to this babit throw their fore feet back, lunge, and do not get themselves up in shape. The daily food of "Queen of Barnett," a Jersey cow that has a record of 746 pounds of butter in 1881, consists of four quarts of bran, four quarts of ground oats, three quarts of corn meal, eight quarts of carrots, and all the good hay she can eat daily. Would there not be more famous Cows if they had the same treatment? There is a good deal of trath in the adage that "the breed is in the mouth" We shall never know in the mouth" the capacity of common cows till we give them uncommon advantages.

How Flies Climb.

Herr H. Dewitz has communicated to the Berlin Society of Nature History some facts that bear very strongly against the generally received theory that flies adhere to perpendicular walls and ceilings by virtue of some sucking power in their feet. He asserts that the feet of flies cannot possess the sucking property ascribed to them, for they are hard and destitute of muscles. The theory has long been contradicted by the experiments of Blackwall, who found that flies could climb the sides of a jar under the receiver and an air pump, where there was no atmospheric pressure, and who asserted that the power of adherence was due to a sticky matter secreted from the foot-hairs of flies. This assertion was generally regarded as not proved, and the case has rested there. Dewitz reports that his investigations have shown that Blackwell was right. He has watched the exudation of the sticky matter from the feet of the flies by fastening one of the insects to the plate of glass and viewing it under the microscope. A per-fectly clear liquid was seen to flow from the ends of the foot-hairs and attach the foot to the glass. When the foot was lifted up to be put down in another was litted up to be put down in another place the drops of the sticky matter were perceived to be left on the glass, in the exact places, where the foot-hairs had rested. The adhesive fluid appears to pass down through the hollow of the hair and to be derived from glands which Leydig discovered in the folds of the foot in 1859. A similar adhesive matter appears to be possessed by all insects that climb the stems and the under sides of the leaves of plants. -Popular Science Monthly. A Petroleum Man's Protest.

An Amateur Salvage Company. Mr. C. J. Thompson's friends tell this story of him; Mr. Thompson himself says it is exaggerated: Much disturbed by fires occurring in the neighborhood, Mr. Thompson decided to organize a fire company in his family, realizing that a little precaution might save him considerable in time of danger. He accordingly thoroughly drilled the different members in their respective duties and waited, but as no opportunity for action offered, he selected a morning to give a false alarm and test their efficiency. Leaning from the back parlor window he shouted "fire" at the top of his lungs.

The echo of his voice had not died away, when a sofa and two chairs grazed his ear on their way downward, four oil paintings swept down the lead-er, a washstand and two trunks slid past him, two bed slats and a mattress struck him on the head, and in an upward glance seeing the legs of the library table appear at the second story window, he withdrew and started up stairs. Haif way up he met the round marble slab from the center table which glided between his feet without a word, and struck the servant girl behind him who was carrying the china upstairs for safety, and she and her burden landed in the hall.

Gaining the second floor he was in time to see his eldest daughter carefully remove the bureau drawers one by one and drop them from the window. Before he could speak he met a stream of water from a fire engine which took him in the face and heard the front door being opened by the fire department axes, while the parlor windows stepped out to admit the ladders. Turning to fly he met his wife with a gridiron and an almanae in one hand, while the other was occupied with a baby and a glass of wooden toothpicks, and at the same instant there was a deafening erash which proved to be two mirrors and the parlor stove tied together, reaching the ground, while a fireman ax in hand inquired, "Where is the fire?"

Wood Staining.

A novel system of staining wood has been introduced that has the merit of simplicity and cheapness. The wood having been earefully planed and fin-ished, it is given two thin coats of sizing. This is prepared by adding to glue a small quantity of albumen and alum. When this is dry and hard, the design is painted or stenciled upon the wood, the intention being to produce a pat-tern, one part of which shall be of the natural color of the wood, the stencil or the design selected representing the white parts only. For instance, if the finished work is to show white figures on a dark ground, the white parts only must appear to the stencil. When the sizing is dry the pattern is painted on in Canada balsam or Brunswick black. When the balsam is hard and dry the whole surface is washed with a sponge and warm water. This will remove the sizing from all those parts of the wood not protected by the hard balsam, which resists the warm water. When the wood is dry the exposed parts are stained in imitation of walnut or other dark woods. When the staining is finished, the balsam is removed by brushing it with turpentine, leaving the pattern or design in the natural color of the wood on the dark, stained ground, The finished work is said to resemble closely inlaid wood.

Stupidity in the Post Office Department does not prove to be exclusively characteristic of this country, the Canadians having discovered that since Rimouski was made the shipping place for the mails, letters directed "via Father Point' are sent to their Dead Letter, Office. The Montreal Witness exclaims: "Just imagine the intelligence of a department which sends letters to the Dead Letter Office because marked to go to England by a wharf eight or ten miles further on than that now used by the mail steamers."

William . Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a re port went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. William Hall's Balsam for the LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

"I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased lungs will take Dr. WILLIAM HALL'L BALSAM, and be convinced that consumption can be cured. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

bilious complaints and diseases of the blood, liver, kidneys, stomach, skin, etc. Dr. DeWitt C. Kellinger's liminent is ameness, and diseases of the scalp, and or promoting the growth of the hair.

Remerkable Escape.

John Kuhn, of Lafayette, Ind., had very narrow escape from death. This is nis own story: "One year ago I was in the last stages of consumption. Our best physicians gave my case up. I finally got so low that our dector said I could not live twenty-four hours. My friends then purchased a bottle of Dr. Wm. Hall's cases, vitalize the system and arrest the Balsam for the lungs, which benefited me, I continued until I took nine bottles. I am now in perfect health having used no other medicine." From the above it is plainly evident that there is a cure foronsumption, even in the most hopeles cases, and that cure is Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the lungs. Cures all coughs and colds. Cures all diseases of the lungs and chest. Cures pneumonia and sore throat, and is a sure cure for consumption,

YOUNG MIN

There are many at the age of thirty to sinky who are troubled with too frequent exacushies of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish has again changing to a dark and terpid appearance. There are many men who die of the difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantes a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
